

“It is not who is right but what is right that is of importance.”
—THOMAS HUXLEY

“All truth passes through three stages: first, it’s ridiculed; second, it’s violently opposed; third, it’s accepted as being self-evident.”
—ARTHUR SCHOPENHAUER

“All the arguments to prove man’s superiority cannot shatter this hard fact: in suffering, the animals are our equals.”
—PETER SINGER

It was legal to kidnap and enslave black skinned people in early America,

BUT WAS IT RIGHT?

It was legal to persecute and experiment on Jews in Germany in World War II,

BUT WAS IT RIGHT?

It was legal to relegate women to a place of inferiority and submission and deny them the vote,

BUT WAS IT RIGHT?

Today it is legal to cage and torture animals for entertainment, research, and food,

BUT IS IT RIGHT?

TEACHES CHILDREN INSENSITIVITY and ambivalence toward other unique beings by encouraging spectacles like rodeos, circuses, and dog and horse races.

TEACHES IMPRISONMENT and unnatural environments by confining animals to zoos.

TEACHES VIOLENCE by hunting; encouraging systematic killing of defenseless animals and labeling it “sport.”

TEACHES INDIFFERENCE by condoning and encouraging the buying and wearing of animal skins.

TEACHES DESENSITIZATION by forcing students to dissect animals, calling it education.

TEACHES CHILDREN INEQUALITY by condoning slaughter of animals for food while encouraging love and compassion for companion animals.

PEOPLE WHO CARE about helping animals come from all walks of life. They are doctors, teachers, miners, writers, store clerks, construction workers, corporate executives, college professors, and secretaries—male, female, young and old alike. They are rational, mainstream Americans with homes, families, and responsible jobs.

THEY ARE THOUGHTFUL PEOPLE who know there is a better way to live with our nonhuman companions than to exploit and abuse them. They are risk-takers who put their lives on the line to defend the defenseless. They are people who care deeply because they know that animals are suffering.

THEY ARE PEOPLE WHO ARE INTERESTED IN SCIENCE and care about the advancement of research through the use of computer technology—methods more reliable than animal research. They are compassionate and try to live a lifestyle that reflects their beliefs.
