FAQs

Who are our SPEAKers?

Our SPEAKers are professional presenters. All have experience teaching or presenting and are dedicated to spreading the word about the plight of animals. Many have advanced degrees and a number of our SPEAKers have written books. To find out more about our individual SPEAKers, please visit our Website at www.speakonline.org.

What do our SPEAKers present?

Our speakers present on animal rights issues including: animal agribusiness, animals in entertainment, wildlife issues, animals used in research and testing, animals used in education, the pet trade, the companion animal stray population, and environmental issues. Our SPEAKers present to all ages.

How do I contact a SPEAKer?

Visit the SPEAK Website at www.speakonline.org and click on the “Contact a SPEAKer” button. There you will see a map of the U.S. Click on the school bell in your state to contact a local SPEAKer directly.

If you do not see a school bell in your state, you are still in luck. SPEAK also has SPEAKers who travel the country offering presentations. To contact one of our cross-country SPEAKers, click on the link above the U.S. map.

Do I have to pay for a SPEAKer?

All of our SPEAKers are independent agents who volunteer their time. Many have their own small organizations who appreciate donations so they can continue to offer vital presentations to the public. Any financial details should be worked out directly with your SPEAKer.

Where do our SPEAKers present?

Elementary Schools
Middle Schools
Junior High Schools
High Schools
Colleges
Universities
Places of Worship
Community Groups
Civic Organizations
Summer Camps

Do all our SPEAKers present on all animal rights issues to all ages?

Most of our SPEAKers specialize, devoting themselves to one or two issues and to certain age groups. However, other SPEAKers are comfortable presenting on any animal rights issue and to any age group. When individuals contact a SPEAKer they should find out the animal rights topics and to which age groups the SPEAKer offers presentations.
